

CyberNexus. Originally the name meant something, Cyber; electronic, computer related. From the Greek word Kubernetes meaning Steersman. Nexus; from the Latin for connection, center. An electronic connection place.

CyberNexus. A connecting place.

Our goal is to encourage respectful, thoughtful discussion of current events and our world. We here at CyberNexus approach these issues from a Christian worldview, but mindful that much of the rest of the world doesn't share that viewpoint.

That doesn't mean we won't provide some apologetics, or evangelizing, and a lot of articles will not even mention Christ's name. We will be writing sometimes about earthly issues and not making specific references to God and His Son. Ok?

We'll offer selections of news and other information as we see fit. Ok, so this is our site. Your input and contributions have a place here - this is not a one-way conversation we're having. We value you greatly, and we're hoping you will come back again and again. And no, this is not a link farm. We will choose the links we offer the old-fashioned way, by hand...

For now, CyberNexus is just a 'hobby', though a hobby with a purpose. If we start commercializing it in any way, be assured we will not:

- exploit your personal information.

- sell your information to marketers.

- offer commercial or marketing content as if it was not. I really hate that.

If for any reason we change any of these policies, you will be asked to 'opt-in', or choose to be included. We'll have more on this, and formal policy, as soon as we can cross the 't's and dot the 'i's. For now, our policy is to not disclose your information unless required to by law.

This is the beginning of the beginning. Stay tuned!